

RECRUITS:

After the guy dressed as a leprechaun was killed, and because we aren't sure if other previous cases are related to this, we are circulating any letters, depositions, and files from old cases where victims were found murdered while dressed in costume. We have already investigated these cases once. However, because we are understaffed, you must do double duty and search the attached files for any evidence we may have missed. Hopefully by repeating our investigation, we'll be able to come at the evidence from both ends and uncover a crucial bit of information. Good luck.

(Exhibit I was marked for Identification)

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. BURDELL:

Q. Good afternoon Doctor Robbins. My name is
 G. Burdell, and I'm going to try and be as direct as I can with you...

A. Ok...

Q. Have you ever had your deposition taken before?

A. Yes.

Q. So you're familiar with the deposition process?

A. Sure.

Q. Ok then, what I'm handing you now is the crime scene report filed by the Greater Atlanta Criminalistics department last 31 October... have you ever seen this before?

A. Yes, last month during the first deposition...

Q. And you were the medical examiner for this case?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you please then provide an overview of the case for us...

A. Alright. The victims of a double homicide were discovered behind a club in Midtown Atlanta. Witnesses reported they were on their way to a Halloween party. The victims were a Canadian couple, Ilsa Lund - age 49 from Ottawa, who was dressed as a gogo dancer, and her boyfriend Richard Blaine - age 47 from Toronto, who was dressed as Humphrey Bogart from Casablanca.

Q. What was the condition of the bodies?

A. Both were found DOA at the scene. Mr. Blaine had a broken leg, and Ms. Lund had a sprained wrist.

Q. Which you originally used as evidence that there had been a struggle before their death.

A. Correct.

Q. And you now believe that to be in error?

A. Yes. Mr. Blaine's medical history was finally obtained from the Canadian officials, and his history indicated a previous injury at that point on his leg, and based on the position of the bodies, the refracture was likely caused when the couple fell.

Q. Ok. Reassure me that I have this correct... you are implying that the couple was already dead when they fell to the ground?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any other evidence to support this?

A. Indeed... eye witnesses had reportedly seen them recently at the MuMu fish market, which is a self-serve seafood restaurant, where they had apparently eaten dinner. A re-examination of the contents of their stomachs revealed several Filipino SiSi Oysters, and a higher concentration of Cesium than should have been present.

Q. Enough to kill them?

A. Yes, when ingested.

Q. Where would this couple have come across that much Cesium?

A. Mr. Blaine worked for a company called CSybernetics that makes Cesium-based timing motors for artificial limbs.

Q. And if he accidentally contaminated their dinner?

A. Then their faces would have turned as red as a tomato for about 20 seconds, and then they would have fallen dead...

Q. So you feel comfortable now, given the evidence, to pronounce this a case of accidental exposure...?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Very well. Is there anything else you believe we should know about the scene?

A. Well... (pauses) the only other unusual thing is that bodies were found near a violently turned over pallet of Cocoa Pebbles, but I can't see how that would be relevant.

Q. Alright, Thank you for your time Dr. Robbins, we will let you know if we require more information.

A. Ok.
