

Greetings,

Recently an intern here at the global headquarters of Uncle Vinny's Pizza Pie Emporium was tasked to do conduct a semi-formal survey in the Greater Atlanta Area. This survey was to track the popularity of a small handful of toppings based on relative percentage sold per day in a particular time period. This intern apparently hadn't heard his calling for being a pizza pie statistician, so he left as soon as he conducted the survey. Inconveniently when this intern left, he did not provide us with a copy of the data, leaving us only this bar chart of the data.

We at Uncle Vinny's Pizza Pie Emporium believe that there must be a way to gather useful information out of these results, and task you to do such. You can find a copy of this bar chart attached to this letter.

Kindest Regards,
Uncle Vinny

